Undergraduate Diploma in Creativity Theory, History and Philosophy

2020-2021

Course code: 2021DRC800

COURSE GUIDE

University of Cambridge Institute of Continuing Education, Madingley Hall, Cambridge, CB23 8AQ Tel 01223 746222 www.ice.cam.ac.uk Welcome to the Undergraduate Diploma in Creativity Theory, History and Philosophy, a University of Cambridge award offered by the Institute of Continuing Education (ICE). The Diploma is taught and awarded at FHEQ level 5 (i.e. second-year undergraduate level) and attracts 60 credits. The award is completed in one academic year. For further information about academic credit please see our website: http://www.ice.cam.ac.uk/studying-with-us/information-for-students/qualifications-that-we-offer.

The course offers three termly units and a syllabus and reading and resource list for each of these units are included in this course guide.

The course aims to allow students to:

- To develop the students' ability to analyse, evaluate and communicate key concepts within creativity theory and the history of creativity, and to exercise significant judgement across a broad range of functions, including: creativity as an emergent process; creativity as an incremental process.
- To develop students' capacity to interact effectively within a team, giving and receiving information and ideas (learning to identify new problems) and learning to modify responses where appropriate within a collaborative framework.
- To develop students' ability to assess own capabilities using justifiable criteria set by self and others taking the wider needs of the context into account.

Teaching staff

Course Director:

Dr Alexander Carter - Academic Director, Institute Teaching Officer in Philosophy

Alex was awarded his PhD in Philosophy by the University of Essex in 2015. Before this, Alex studied Philosophy & Ancient History at the University of Wales, Swansea and Philosophy at the University of Bristol. Alex has over five years of teaching experience in Ethics, History of Philosophy and Philosophy of Religion. He has worked at the Institute of Continuing Education since 2015 as Academic Director for Philosophy and as a Panel Tutor.

Alex's teaching method was developed at the University of Essex where the principle aim is to get students to feel the "pain of the problem", i.e. to make plain the very real ways in which philosophical problems affect our lives. Accordingly, Alex is most keen to offer his support to philosophical projects that, not only to inform contemporary debates, but actively affect change. Alex's ongoing research interests include the theology of Simone Weil and Ludwig Wittgenstein's ethical philosophy.

Tutors:

Abigail Docherty

Abigail is a playwright, working in theatre and for BBC Radio 4. She teaches performance and creativity at ICE. She is co-director of the MSt in Writing for Performance which opens in September 2020. Her creative research interests lie in dramatising the voices of women and children who have experienced high-conflict/war-zone situations. She was the 2012 Pearson Bursary Writer in Residence at the Tron Theatre, Glasgow. Her children's play One Thousand Paper Cranes won the Best Scottish Contribution to Drama at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival in 2011 and has been produced all over the world. Sea and Land and Sky, based on the oral testimonies/histories of World War I nurses won the 2010 National Open-Stage Playwriting Competition at the Tron and is published by Methuen Drama. Other work includes Four Parts Broken (The National Theatre of Scotland) and Room (Tron). Her first radio play, Listen to my Inside Mind was a winner in the BBC Young Playwrights' Festival. She has written widely for Radio 4, with plays including Ursula and Boy and Edward, Edward. Her teaching uses mixed-media, including music, poetry, and art-making, in order to encourage students to create dramatic voice and text.

Dr Martin Parker-Dixon

Dr Martin Parker-Dixon is a lecturer in music at University of Glasgow's School of Culture and Creative Arts. He is currently a bye fellow at Fitzwilliam College. His research interests are in the interdisciplinary area of twentieth-century music and philosophy. From his PhD onwards, Martin has been exploring music in its moment of production, as a "creative process".

His recent and forthcoming papers are concerned in one way or another with the peculiarities that arise when artists themselves make claims about art.

Julie Webb

Julie Webb is a psychotherapist and supervisor in private practice in Cambridge and a member of the counselling and wellbeing team at Anglia Ruskin University. As a counselling trainer and lecturer in both FE and HE settings, Julie is passionate about experiential process: how we encounter one another and the ethics involved in empathic, supportive and encouraging environments.

She has a particular interest in the relevance of philosophy to therapy and Zen Buddhism; has published reviews and articles in professional therapy journals; co-edited Therapy and the Counter-tradition: the edge of philosophy (2016) and has contributed a chapter in Revisioning Person-centered Therapy (2018); Her latest book Fifty Minutes: a collection of therapy dialogues, will be published in June 2020.

Start date	7 th November 2020	End date	6 th December 2020
Dates	7 th - 8 th November 2020 &	Time	Saturdays 10 – 4pm
	5 th - 6 th December 2020		Sundays 10 – 3pm
Tutors	Dr Alexander Carter	No of	Two weekends
	Abigail Docherty	meetings

Aims

This unit allows students to:

- uncover the origins and meanings of ancient and early modern notions of creativity;
- engage with cross-cultural ancient, classical, and religious histories, philosophies, and literary texts, paintings and artefacts;
- develop analytic and critical thinking skills to help maintain an open mind.

Content

This unit will introduce students to key themes, concepts, and terms of creativity theory. The origins and meaning of early notions of creativity as 'creation' (something arriving from nothing, ex-nihilo, as an act of 'God') will be explored by engaging with cross-cultural ancient, classical, and religious histories, philosophies, and literary texts, paintings and artefacts.

Presentation of the unit

Teaching and learning on the course is delivered through a combination of Pre-Recorded Lectures and live discussion seminars by the tutors; and through reading and assignments to be undertaken individually by students outside the course sessions. Pre-Recorded lectures will be made available in advance of the teaching weekends. Remote delivery during the teaching weekends will focus on group discussion and practical exercises. Termly Peer Group Supervisions will be scheduled in-between the two teaching weekends.

Students will also be expected to undertake interactive and participative methods of teaching and learning, such as group exercises, oral presentations and forum discussions. Student participation also involves sharing work and applying constructive criticism to the work of other students.

Workshop 3 hours Creative artefacts: What makes someone create? What makes something creative?

Provisional lecture list

Learning outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- 1. identify key ancient and early modern notions of creativity, e.g. as a divine act;
- 2. critically assess the creative aspects of particular texts, paintings and artefacts;
- 3. apply philosophical techniques to draw fruitful connections between historical events.

Student assessment

As part of a Diploma course, this unit requires a commitment to reading and pre-class preparation.

Students will be encouraged to read set texts, participate in class discussion, and undertake independent research.

Students are required to submit a formative assignment of 3,000 - 3,500 words on one of the titles given below. Students will receive feedback about the formative assignment and at the end of unit 3 students will be required to submit it as part of their summative assessment portfolio (see unit 3 for details).

Assignment titles – please choose one of the following:

- 1) Why is creation ex nihilo associated with divine acts?
- 2) Is the notion of divine creation relevant today?
- 3) What are myths for?
- 4) Can truth be invented? If so, why? If not, why not?
- 5) Identify a work of art from the Ancient World or the Renaissance (1300-1600). What makes it creative?
- 6) What factors contribute to making a particular period in history creative?

Closing date for the submission of unit 1 formative assignment: Wednesday 6th January 2021 by 12.00 (noon) GMT (Greenwich Mean Time)

For the award of credit the assignment will be weighted at 30% of the course total.

Students are expected to submit their assignments online and feedback on assignments is delivered online.

Julie Webb

Abigail Docherty

Dr Martin Parker-Dixon

Aims

This unit allows students to:

- further explore the historical development of ideas concerning creativity in Europe during the Enlightenment;
- consider the impact of scientific discovery on religious notions of creativity;
- challenge their own thinking about how ideas and creative practices come about.

Content

This unit explores changes in cultural ideas of 'creativity' in the 18th and 19th centuries, e.g. as a process of transformation of substances that already exist, through individual acts of genius and the 'force' of 'inspiration' (Pope, 2005). Creativity now comes from 'inside' the human imagination, idealised as a process only available to a few 'chosen' geniuses.

Presentation of the unit

Teaching and learning on the course is delivered through a combination of Pre-Recorded Lectures and live discussion seminars by the tutors; and through reading and assignments to be undertaken individually by students outside the course sessions. Pre-Recorded lectures will be made available in advance of the teaching weekends. Remote delivery during the teaching weekends will focus on group discussion and practical exercises. Skills Sessions	1-4	Creative spaces: letting the genius out of the bottle
Sunday 17 th January
Seminar	10-11	What does an artistic rule look like?
Workshop	12-3	In this workshop we will get a practical grasp of the concepts of possibility, exemplarity, rule-following, and exceptions by playing 18th Century 'Musical Dice Games', and perhaps inventing games of our own.
Saturday 6 th February (TBC)
Peer Group Supervisions	2 hours	Peer Group Supervisions: in groups of 5-6, students will discuss the feedback on their Unit 1 assignments and look forward to their assignments for Unit 2.
Weekend 2: Saturday 27 th	February - Sund	ay 28 th February 2021
Pre-Recorded Lectures	1-2 hours	Creativity in the age of reason
	1-2 hours	Lewis Carroll and the art of self-contradiction
	1-2 hours	"Nothing new under the Sun"
Saturday 27 th February
Lecture	10 – 11	Looking forward
Seminar	11 – 1	Darwin and Language; Blake, Science and the Imagination
Skills Sessions	2 – 4	Disobedient objects: contrariness and imagination in the creative process (with Marina Velez)

Sunday 28th February

Seminars	10 – 12	Must our ideas always make sense?
Seminar	1 – 3	Are all (post)modern inventions adaptations of old ideas?

Learning outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- 1. analyse different conceptions of creativity and specify how these conceptions changed over time;
- 2. understand the role imagination and the intellect play in generating new ideas;
- 3. think reflectively and reflexively about their own thinking and introduce new ways of thinking creatively.

Student assessment

As part of a Diploma course, this unit requires a commitment to reading and pre-class preparation.

Students will be encouraged to read set texts, participate in class discussion, and undertake independent research.

Students are required to submit a formative assignment of 3,000 - 3,500 words on one of the titles given below. Students will receive feedback about the formative assignment and at the end of unit 3 students will be required to submit it as part of their summative assessment portfolio (see unit 3 for details).

Assignment titles – please choose one of the following:

- 1) Critically discuss the romantic conception of creativity as the lone genius.
- 2) In what ways is the imagination limited?
- 3) Is every invention an adaptation?
- 4) 'Do I contradict myself? Very well, I contradict myself. I am large I contain multitudes'. What does this indicate about the nature of thought?
- 5) Is a creative genius born or made? Justify your answer.
- 6) According to E. M. Forster, "Look before you leap is criticism's motto. Leap before you look is creativity's." To what extent is criticism antithetical to creativity?

Closing date for the submission of unit 2 formative assignment: Wednesday, 31st March 2021 by 12.00 (noon) BST (British Summer Time)

For the award of credit the assignment will be weighted at 30% of the course total.

Students are expected to submit their assignments online and feedback on assignments is delivered online.

	29 th – 30 th May 2021		Sundays 10 – 3pm
Tutors	Dr Alex Carter	No of meetings	Two weekends
	Abigail Docherty
	Julie Webb

Aims

This unit allows students to:

- expose contemporary visions of creative practice, e.g. as dynamic and democratic;
- situate contemporary ideas concerning creativity within an historical context;
- critically examine the relationship between creation and de-creation.

Content

This unit assesses the more 'modern' idea that creativity is conceptualised as plural, dynamic, democratic (not the preserve of geniuses), participative, and constantly emerging (Pope, 2005). The unit will reflect these ideas by engaging with the scientific and cultural advances of the twentieth century, as well as examining this period's great capacities for self-destruction (de-creation).

Presentation of the unit

Teaching and learning on the course is delivered through a combination of Pre-Recorded Lectures and live discussion seminars by the tutors; and through reading and assignments to be undertaken individually by students outside the course sessions. Pre-Recorded lectures will be made available in advance of the teaching weekends. Remote delivery during the teaching weekends will focus on group discussion and practical exercises. Sunday 30th May

Live Stream	10 – 12	Panel discussion: followed by Q&A
Seminar	2 – 3	"How creative am I?"
Skills Session	3 – 5	Voluntary obstacles and other helpful tools

Learning outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- 1. gain critical distance from contemporary ideas associated with creative practice;
- 2. make new connections, modify and recombine ancient, modern and post-modern ideas concerning what creativity is (not);
- 3. recognise and respond to several more challenging aspects of creative practice.

Student assessment

As part of a Diploma course, this unit requires a commitment to reading and pre-class preparation.

Students will be encouraged to read set texts, participate in class discussion, and undertake independent research.

Students are required to submit a formative assignment of 3,000 - 3,500 words on one of the titles given below. Students will receive feedback about the formative assignment and at the end of unit 3 students will be required to submit it as part of their summative assessment portfolio (see summative assessment portfolio section below for details).

Assignment titles – please choose one of the following:

- 1) How has creativity been democratised? Is the democratisation of creativity a good thing?
- 2) In what ways is creativity dangerous? Is it worth the risk?
- 3) What does Blanchot mean when he says that the writer in the act of writing is "dying and without truth."
- 4) How do obstacles help us to be more creative?
- 5) Must we destroy in order to create?
- 6) Henri Bergson defined his Theory of Multiplicity as the moment when "[...] several states of consciousness are organised into a whole, permeate each other, [and] gradually gain a richer context." (Bergson, Time and Free Will, p.122). How does heterogeneity help us to be more creative?

Closing date for the submission of unit 3 formative assignment: Friday 4th June 2021 by 12.00 (noon) BST (British Summer Time).

For the award of credit the assignment will be weighted at 30% of the course total.

Students are expected to submit their assignments online and feedback on assignments is delivered online.

Summative assessment portfolio

Students are required to submit a portfolio of their work for summative assessment with a submission deadline of Friday 4th June 2021 by 12.00 (noon) BST (British Summer Time).

The portfolio is to include:

- 1) Unit 1 assignment (3,000 3,500 words)
- 2) Unit 2 assignment (3,000 3,500 words)
- 3) Unit 3 assignment (3,000 3,500 words)
- 4) Self- reflective essay (1,000 1,500 words)

For the award of credit each assignment is weighted at 30% of the course total and the self-reflective essay at 10% of the course total. Students must pass each individual element of the portfolio in order to pass the course.

Students may be able to re-submit failed work. Please consult the relevant section of the Institute's Student Handbook for award bearing courses.
