Undergraduate Certificate in History

2020-2021

Course code: 2021CCR055

COURSE GUIDE
Welcome to the Undergraduate Certificate in History, a University of Cambridge award offered by the Institute of Continuing Education (ICE). The Certificate is taught and awarded at FHEQ level 4 (i.e. first-year undergraduate level) and attracts 60 credits. The award is completed in one academic year. For further information about academic credit please see our website: http://www.ice.cam.ac.uk/studying-with-us/information-for-students/qualifications-that-we-offer.

The course offers three termly units and a syllabus and reading and resource list for each of these units are included in this course guide.

The course aims to:

1. introduce students to the key concepts and methods of history;
2. enable students to identify and explore continuities and discontinuities in history;
3. introduce students to a broad range of history studies in time and location;
4. promote skills of interpreting and evaluating primary and secondary evidence, as a means of fostering independent thinking and the ability to construct a scholarly argument based upon appropriate judgements about evidence;
5. provide students with opportunities for progression to further studies in the area of history.

Teaching staff

Academic Director:

Dr Samantha Williams is Reader in Social History, Academic Director for History and Course director of the MST in History. Her research interests are poverty and welfare in the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries in England.

Syllabus for first unit
Michaelmas term 2020

Reformation, Revolution and Religion in Britain, 1485–1714

Start date 24th October 2020  End date 12th December 2020
Day Saturday  Time Saturday 1.00 – 4.30 pm

Tutors Dr Andrew Lacey  No of meetings Eight online sessions on Saturdays, 24th, 31st October, 7th 14th, 21st, 28th November, 5th, 12th December 2020

Aims

- To explore the political, constitutional and religious disputes of 16th and 17th century Britain.
- To examine the reasons for and the effects of religious upheaval and violence on English and British society in this period.
- To discuss the ways in which this period laid the foundations for the modern British state.

Content

Using an inter-disciplinary approach combining politics, religion and iconography, this course will explore conflict, resistance and revolt between 1485 and 1714. We will explore the expanding world of the early sixteenth-century, the nature of the Reformation unleashed by Henry VIII and Edward VI, the Counter-Reformation of Mary and the ‘religious settlement’ of Elizabeth. We will also study the Catholic opposition under Elizabeth and the rising power of Puritanism which finally provoked Civil War and Revolution across the British Isles in the 1640s and resulted in the downfall of the Stuart monarchy and the execution of Charles I.

From there we will consider why Puritan Republicanism failed to establish itself and the Restoration of the ancien regime in 1660. The ‘settlement’ of 1660 – 2 settled very little and we will study the ways in which royal policy and religion destabilized Britain until the ‘Glorious Revolution’ of 1688. We will conclude by considering the ways in which it was war and finance which finally decided the questions concerning religion and the relative powers of Crown and Parliament and which laid the foundations of the modern British state.

Presentation of the unit

The course will take place online through Zoom. It will contain several different pedagogical approaches including lecture (with power point and video clips from documentary), seminar discussion (both full class and group), and class reflection. You will also have online support through our Virtual Learning Environment.

Outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- Have some familiarity with the broad narrative of events between 1485 and 1714.
- Understand some of the ways in which religious conflict affected English society.
- Appreciate the role and significance of key people and concepts in this period.
- Have some understanding of the ways in which this period created the modern British state.

Student assignments

As part of a Certificate course, this unit requires a commitment to reading and pre-class preparation. Coursework will be in the form of an assignment of 3,700 - 4,000 words.

Students will be encouraged to participate in discussion and in class work. They will also be encouraged to read some of the set texts from the reading list.

An assignment of between 3,700 and 4,000 words.

This assignment is designed to demonstrate that you have developed analytical skills appropriate for an historian.

ASSIGNMENT TITLES

1. ‘Emperor and Pope in his own realm.’ Is this an accurate description of Henry VIII in 1545?

2. Choose two portraits of Elizabeth I and, using the portraits, explore the iconography of power and gender.

3. ‘Elizabeth I’s religious settlement survived against all the odds,’ discuss.

4. What does the iconography of Rubens and Van Dyck tell us about Charles I’s concept of monarchy?

5. Why did the Puritan opposition to James VI & I and Charles I result in Civil War and regicide in the 1640s?

6. Why did the various Commonwealth and Protectoral regimes after 1649 fail?
7. Why were the revelations of Titus Oates concerning the ‘Popish Plot’ so readily believed?

8. In what ways did the French wars between 1689 and 1713 decide the balance of power between Crown and Parliament?

For the award of credit the assignment is weighted at 100% of the unit total.

Students are expected to submit their assignments online and feedback on assignments is delivered online.

Fascism in Europe 1918 - 1945

Start date 16th January 2021  End date 6th March 2021
Day Saturday  Time 1.00 – 4.30 pm
Tutor Dr Andrew Lacey  No of meetings Eight online sessions on Saturdays, 16th, 23rd, 30th January, 6th, 13th, 20th, 27th, February, 6th March 2021

Aims

- To have some understanding of the growth and significance of Fascist and neo-Fascist movements in Europe between 1919-1945.
- To engage with the process of evaluation and interpretation of Fascism/Fascisms in an attempt to arrive at a meaningful and useful understanding.
- To consider the reasons for and the place of collaboration with Nazi Germany in the Second World War.
- To consider the post-1945 significance of Fascism on the European radical right.

Content

The name ‘Fascism’ derives from the fasces of ancient Rome: a bundle of rods and an axe tied together and carried by the Lictors before Roman magistrates as a symbol of their authority. But as a word ‘Fascism’ tells us little or nothing about the political creed or creeds which bore its name in the middle years of the twentieth century. It is also a word surrounded by ambiguity. For example, was German National Socialism the same as Italian Fascism and vice versa? (Hitler, after all, never called himself a Fascist.) What did the Spanish Falange or Sir Oswald Mosley’s British Union of Fascists have in common with Mussolini’s blackshirts? Was there there such a thing as ‘clerico-fascism’ in Austria and Portugal? Where do the Rumanian Iron Guard fit into all this? The questions surrounding the nature of Fascism are many and controversial. Yet some meaningful conclusions can be drawn concerning such things as the Fascist concept of the state, the importance of myth, ritual and ‘civic religion’, the cult of the leader, their concepts of the sort of society they wanted to create after their enemies had been defeated and, linked to those concepts, the forming of the ‘new Fascist man’ – homo fascistus.

This course will concentrate on discussing those characteristics common to most overtly Fascist or National Socialist movements in Europe between 1919 and 1945. It is not intended to provide a narrative of European history between those dates, rather it is intended to use the historical narrative to illustrate the process of interpretation. We will examine the origins of Fascism in the chaotic aftermath of the First World War and attempt an overview of the essential characteristics of the principle movements. From there we will look at how Fascism manifested itself through ‘political theatre’ and explore the concept of ‘civic religion’ and its importance to our understanding of the inner dynamic of these movements. We will also explore the case of collaboration during World War II – from Finland to North Africa, from Spain to India. Why did individuals and countries choose to fight with or alongside Nazi Germany? Finally, we will close with a discussion of the state of neo-fascist and neo-Nazi movements in Europe since 1945 and the legacies which Fascism may have bequeathed to the modern world.

The making of America and the Native Americans

Start date 10th April 2021  End date 29th May 2021
Day Saturdays (and 1 Sunday)  Time 13.00 - 17.30
Tutor Dr Ian Chambers  No of meetings Eight online sessions on 10th, 11th, 17th and 24th April, 01st, 08th, 15th and 29th May

Aims
- To offer a broad chronological understanding Native American History.
- To enable students to understand the continuing presence of Native American’s in American Society.
- To explore the cultural background of Native Americans.
- To analyse the problems surrounding the interpretation of historical sources and to enable students to acquire some of the skills needed to evaluate them critically.

Content
The course will give a broad chronological and geographical introduction to Native American History. Looking at both well-known and not so well individuals and events will allow us to delve deep into specific topics that are representative of broader issues. We will explore issues such as conflict, diplomacy, governmental relations and the state of Native Americans in present day America. By focussing on several discrete events and native groups we will gain an insight in to the make-up of native community and society and track the trials and tribulations that native people have undergone.

Presentation of the unit
The course will take place online through Zoom. It will contain several different pedagogical approaches including lecture (with power point and video clips from documentary), seminar discussion (both full class and group), and class reflection. You will also have online support through our Virtual Learning Environment.
