Undergraduate Diploma in Creative Writing: Advanced Fiction and Writing for Performance – Cohort 2

2020 – 2021

Course code: 2021DCR102

COURSE GUIDE

Welcome to the Undergraduate Diploma in Creative Writing: Advanced Fiction and Writing for Performance, a University of Cambridge award offered by the Institute of Continuing Education (ICE). The Diploma is taught and awarded at FHEQ level 5 (i.e. second-year undergraduate level) and attracts 60 credits. The award is completed in one academic year. For further information about academic credit please see our website: <http://www.ice.cam.ac.uk/studying-with-us/information-for-students/qualifications-that-we-offer>.

The course offers three termly units and a syllabus and reading and resource list for each of these units are included in this course guide.

The programme aims to:

1. introduce students to a wide range of different literary genres and styles in order to stimulate and develop their own creative writing;
2. develop students' critical skills in assessing the work of published authors and their own writing;
3. provide opportunities for students to experiment with their own work and to build their confidence;
4. extend students' knowledge of the transferability of techniques between different genres;
5. encourage students to contextualise their writing within a variety of traditions and genres;
6. provide opportunities for progression to further study in the area of creative writing.

Transferable skills for further study and employability

- The capacity for independent thought and judgement
- The development of independent learning, study and time management skills
- The deployment of skills in critical reasoning
- The development of competence in using IT to support one's work
- The ability to work with others, productively and equitably
- The qualities necessary for employment requiring the exercise of some personal responsibility and the demonstration of high levels of motivation and personal commitment through part-time study

Study hours

The award of academic credit is a means of quantifying and recognising learning and within the UK, one credit notionally represents 10 hours of learning¹. Each of the units in this course attracts 20 credits so students should expect to need to study for approximately 200 hours in total to complete each unit successfully. However, it is recognised that students study at different paces and use a variety of approaches, so this is a recommendation, rather than a hard-and-fast calculation.

Course Director

Elizabeth Speller has a Cambridge MA and MPhil. Her work includes The Return of Captain John Emmett (Virago, 2011, Orange Book of the Month) and At Break of Day (Virago, 2014, CNY State One Read 2015). Her non-fiction includes Following Hadrian (Hodder/OUP, 2003) and a memoir, The Sunlight on the Garden (Granta, 2007). She was short-listed for the Forward Prize for Poetry in 2009 and provided the libretto for Michael Berkeley's work Farewell, written in memory of Sir Paul McCartney's wife Linda.

Tutors

The course will be taught by a team of experienced tutors with teaching and research interests in diverse areas of critical and creative work. The most up-to-date lecture list for each unit including any guest lecturers will be published in the course's Virtual Learning Environment. Tutors on this course will likely include:

Craig Baxter is a dramatist writing primarily for the stage but also for screen and radio. Most recently: 'Trumpington Voices' (community verbatim play), 'The Little Big Band' (musical book, Netherhall School), 'Eight Days That Made Rome' (Channel 5), 'Lady Anna: All at Sea' (Cambridge Arts Theatre, Bath Theatre Royal and Number One Tour), 'Pictures of You' (Cambridge Science Festival), 'The Man Who Walked Through Walls' (Perse Girls), 'Somniloquy' (Hotbed Festival, Soho Theatre), 'Let Newton Be!' (Faraday Institute, Cambridge, El Paso), 'Re:Design' (Darwin Correspondence Project, Madrid, Berlin, Istanbul), 'Like Confessing a Murder' (BBC Radio 3), 'Monogamy' (Riverside Studies, BBC Radio 4). His play, 'The Altruists', won the fourth international Stage Script Competition for Best New Play About Science or Technology.

Rick Harvey is a screenwriter, story design consultant, lecturer and mentor. Since gaining an MA Screenwriting & Research qualification from the London College of Communication in 2001, he has storylined for Family Affairs (Talkback Thames/Channel 5), developed projects for Hewland International and Frenzy Films, written a slate of short films and "spec" features, mentored on First Light, Media Box and BFI projects and written and developed feature screenplays for EON Productions. He was trained by the UK Film Council to devise, develop and deliver industry-standard courses on screenwriting and cross-platform story design, and he lectures regularly on various aspects of the writing process. Rick is currently adapting one of his screenplays, Shadowplay, into a six-part serial for TV, writing and developing an interactive conspiracy Thriller, Heretic[s] for TELL/Settle Stories, and working as a module leader/mentor at Raindance and as a mentor for BCre8ive.

Claire McGlasson is an author and journalist whose debut novel The Rapture (Faber and Faber), inspired by the true story of an Edwardian cult of women, was a Sunday Times Book of the Year. She reports for ITV News, appears on programmes such as BBC 4's Front Row, is a regular chair and guest at literary festivals and writes articles for publications including The Guardian and The Big Issue. She is currently writing her second novel for Faber.

Menna van Praag was born in Cambridge and studied Modern History at Balliol College, Oxford. She's the author of five magical realism novels: The House at the End of Hope Street (2013), The Dress Shop of Dreams (2015), The Witches of Cambridge (2016), The Lost Art of Letter Writing (2017), The Patron Saint of Lost Souls (2019) all set in Cambridge. Her first novella Men, Money & Chocolate was translated into 26 languages. The first instalment of her fantasy trilogy, The Sisters Grimm, was published in 2020. She's a Creative Writing tutor who teaches for institutions including ICE, Hay House Publishers and The Cambridge School of Drama & the Creative Arts. She's also worked as a script reader and editor for BBC Wales, BBC Films and Box TV and for The Wylie Literary Agency.

Emily Winslow is the author of a series of Cambridge-set crime novels: The Whole World (Allison & Busby, 2013), The Start of Everything (Allison & Busby, 2013), The Red House (Allison & Busby, 2015), and Look For Her (Allison & Busby, 2017). The Washington Post has written: "[Winslow is] brilliant at portraying the ragged fragments of these lives. What emerges isn't a single killer with motive and means, but a tangle of stories crossing and colliding, stray intersections of incidents and accidents, misunderstandings and misreadings, all thanks to the myopia of individual perspectives and the self-centeredness of individual desires.” She is also the author of the memoir Jane Doe January (William Morrow, 2016), which has been called “powerfully redemptive” (Publishers Weekly) and “potently rendered” (Kirkus). She’s written personal essays for The Guardian and The New York Times, and for six years was a logic puzzle designer for Games magazine in the US.”

Syllabus for first unit
Lent term 2021

Introduction to Fiction

Start date	4 January 2021	End date	01 March 2021
Day	Mondays and Saturdays	Time	7.15pm -9.15pm Mondays
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutors	Elizabeth Speller Claire McGlasson	No of meetings	9 evening classes plus 2 Saturday day-schools (23 January and 20 February 2021). Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2pm)

Aims

- To expand students' knowledge of different approaches to writing prose fiction in order to inform their own choices and augment their technical skills.
- To explore what a writer can learn from the works of very different authors and from several periods by analysing a range of novels, or extracts from fiction.
- To encourage confidence in experimentation and the development of strategies to meet potential technical challenges in creative work.

Content

This course assumes some experience of writing and basic writing skills and a reasonable breadth of reading. The course will focus on novels and short stories to help students develop a lively and original style. Fiction writing is a craft which brings together the psychology and creative experience of each individual with a range of techniques and approaches that can be taught, and also amplified by critical reading. The course will include mini lectures, writing tasks, discussions about homework and workshops, where students' work can be explored in smaller groups.

Seminar style exploration of individual topics usually fill the morning sessions, with writing exercises and discussion of individual experiences in creative writing. In the afternoon we shall discuss the set books for the day and, on some days, have a visiting speaker.

Classes will build on the foundation of students' existing writing skills to explore more complex techniques for identifying a potential story: choosing its form, and establishing its unique voice, creating a coherent sense of time and place, keeping dramatic control, and creating pace, conflict, mood. This includes drawing on a wider creative imagination, including music, sound and art.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to fiction. Each class is designed to expose you to new ideas or techniques and to encourage you to experiment in a relaxed, supportive and friendly atmosphere. There will also be the chance to share work on the class's password-protected Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

All teaching will be carried out remotely. We will "meet" via live video conferencing and guest speakers will also join us by video, usually from their home or office. There may be additional, pre-recorded presentations for you to watch between classes. All our tutors have experience of teaching remotely.

Lecture 9	1 March 2021	The last chapter: what have we learned; where do we go next?

Learning Outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- (i) show an awareness of how to structure and develop an extended piece of prose;
- (ii) develop skills to create a sense of place and/or time;
- (iii) assess the merits of different ideas and treatments for a fictional narrative;
- (iv) demonstrate an understanding of the link between different creative forms and ideas and how aspects of them may be used within their work.

Student Assessment

As this is a Diploma course, equivalent at least to second-year undergraduate standard, students are required to carry out tasks between day-schools to make the most of the course. These tasks include reading books relevant to ideas to be explored in the following day-school and completing written exercises or small pieces of research. The best writers of fiction read widely and critically and although it may not be possible to obtain or read all the books suggested before each class, it is essential to read at least one.

All students are encouraged to maintain a private journal or commentary on their own writing and thoughts throughout the course. Although this will not be marked it will provide a useful resource when the student plans their critical commentary (see below).

Most seminars will encourage discussion and students should expect to contribute to these and it is hoped they will be willing to show or read out examples of their own writing. The end-of-term assignment will be made up of two elements:

1. A creative piece of writing of between 2,500 and 3,000 words, the title of which must be agreed with the tutor to ensure it meets the learning outcomes of the unit. The assignment may be a chapter or section of a work of fiction, or a short story or other single piece of fiction writing. It must be an original piece of work and, ideally, developed in response to issues explored in the course.

Assignment length: 2,500- 3,000 words. Weighting: 80% of unit grade.

2. A critical commentary on the creative work submitted by the student for this module. This will give the student the opportunity to reflect on the choices made when writing their creative piece and help them to understand the process of writing. By writing the commentary the student will have a clearer idea of the extent to which they achieved what they set out to achieve and how they have been influenced by other writers. Advice about how to write a successful critical commentary will be offered during the course.

Assignment length: 1,500 words. Weighting: 20% of unit grade.

Closing date for the submission of assignments:

Monday 22 March 2021 by 12.00 noon GMT*

Reading and resource list

As fiction writers the ideal is to read as many novels as possible from all periods; ones using a wide variety of literary techniques to tell many different and diverse stories. Some may delight you, some irritate you, some simply not work. I hope you will read most, or even all, the books on this bibliography. Books marked with an asterisk are essential reading.

Syllabus for second unit
Easter term 2021

Crime and Fantasy Writing

Start date	5 April 2021	End date	07 June 2021
Day	Mondays and Saturdays	Time	7.15pm – 9.15pm Mondays
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutor	Emily Winslow Menna van Praag	No of meetings	10 evening classes plus 2 Saturday day-schools (8 May and 5 June 2021). Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2pm)

Aims

- Introduce students to the breadth of both crime and fantasy fiction, and to the universal writing skills underpinning both, encouraging them to use these skills in furthering their own writing.
- Analyse works from a broad spectrum of both genres, from the classic 'whodunit' to the psychologically nuanced 'whydunit'; from 'the chosen one' to magical realism.
- Examine the potential for both genres to explore social, political, and psychological issues, and to encourage students to make their own experiments with the form.

Content

Crime, with Emily Winslow

'An inspector calls...': the classical whodunit and so much more.

Crime narratives aren't limited to the investigative; they can focus on detectives, villains, victims, and others, and aren't limited to murder. We'll look at examples of the detective-as-hero, the varied forms a detective figure can take, and consider the myriad of other kinds of stories that can be told through the lens of crime.

We'll look at how point of view affects plot, at the breadth of possible structural options, and examine a range of storyteller perspectives—from the old-fashioned omniscient narrator to more modern 'unreliable narrators', as well as the comparative advantages of first versus third person point of view.

Fantasy, with Menna Van Praag

"From the Fantastic to the Fantastical - the depth and breadth of Fantasy Fiction"

There are many rooms in the wild and wonderful houses of speculative fiction: high and low, urban, magical realism, portal, supernatural... And fantasy elements can be effectively utilised in all other genres to makes for original and high-concept fiction. We will explore straight fantasy and cross-over fantasy and look at the rules that must be adhered to and those that can and should be broken.

We'll look at subverting the tropes of speculative fiction. Does all fantasy fiction centre around "The Chosen One"? We will explore the challenges to creating original protagonists (and antagonists) Examples of duologies, trilogies and stand-alone novels will be examined. We will consider ways of concluding your story so that it is satisfying, both for author and reader.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to crime and fantasy. Syllabus for third unit
Michaelmas term 2021

Writing for Performance

Start date	13 September 2021	End date	23 October 2021
Day	Mondays and Saturdays	Time	7.15pm – 9.15pm Mondays
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutor	Craig Baxter Rick Harvey	No of meetings	6 evening classes plus 3 Saturday day-schools (25 September, 16 and 23 October 2021). Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2pm)

Aims

This unit aims to:

- introduce students to the techniques required to write for screen, radio, theatre and other platforms;
- encourage students to apply, and to experiment with, these techniques and strategies to further their own writing;
- explore strategies for students to develop their own short-form dramatic scripts;
- enable students to appraise and assess aesthetic and practical issues of adapting work for a performance-based medium.

Content

The term “performance-based medium” encompasses a broad range of writing from traditional formats, such as film, TV, radio and the stage, to more recent platforms such as interactive stories, video games and web series. This unit will introduce students to the different conventions involved in writing for each. Students will discuss the pros and cons of each medium and how the same story may be interpreted in different ways. Examples taken from stage, screen, radio and new media works will be used to highlight and examine the techniques used by writers, and students will be encouraged to experiment with these in their own work. We will discuss the importance of theme, character, form and dialogue, to explore imaginative ways of transferring from a textual to a performance medium. This may involve changing aspects of the original text, such as point of view, thematic focus, number and nature of characters, location, period, etc. Students will be given the opportunity to develop an original short-form work or adapt an existing work from a textual medium (i.e. short story, poem, or monologue) to a performance-based one.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to writing for performance. Each class is designed to expose you to new ideas or techniques and to encourage you to experiment in a relaxed, supportive and friendly atmosphere. There will also be the chance to share work on the class's password-protected Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

All teaching will be carried out remotely. We will "meet" via live video conferencing and guest speakers will also join us by video, usually from their home or office. There may be additional, pre-recorded presentations for you to watch between classes. All our tutors have experience of teaching remotely.

Provisional lecture list

Date	Session	Indicative content
Lecture 1	13 September 2021	Introduction to writing for performance
Lecture 2	20 September 2021	Writing for the Screen
Day school Saturday day-school (11am-1pm, 2-4pm)	25 September 2021	Short films: theme, character as story (creating a three-dimensional protagonist) and genre as tools
Lecture 3	27 September 2021	Writing for radio: how it's different
Lecture 4	4 October 2021	Writing for radio: from page to set
Lecture 5	11 October 2021	Writing for the theatre: the nuts and bolts

Learning Outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- (i) demonstrate an understanding of the demands of writing for the stage, screen or radio;
- (ii) show understanding of the techniques and strategies for creating original work or adapting work for a performance-based medium;
- (iii) experiment with and apply techniques and strategies for writing for performance to further their own writing;

- (iv) Show awareness of aesthetic and practical issues in choosing material for a performance-based medium.

Student assessment

As this is a Diploma course, equivalent at least to second-year undergraduate standard, students are required to carry out tasks between day-schools to make the most of the course. These tasks include reading books or scripts relevant to ideas to be explored in the following day-school and completing written exercises or small pieces of research. All students are encouraged to maintain a private journal or commentary on their own writing and thoughts throughout the course. Although this will not be marked it should provide a useful resource when the student plans their critical commentary (see below). Most seminars will encourage discussion and students should expect to contribute to these and it is hoped they will be willing to show or read out examples of their own writing in a workshop. The end-of-term assignment will be made up of two elements:

1. An adaptation, or an original work, of between 2,500 and 3,000 words (or the equivalent, appropriate to the form), written by the student, the title of which must be agreed in advance with the tutor to ensure it meets the learning outcomes of the unit. . The assignment may take the form of a short radio play, stage play, screenplay, interactive story etc., or constitute the opening / first act, or section, of a longer work.

Assignment length: 2,500-3,000 words (or the equivalent, appropriate to the form).
Weighting: 80% of unit grade.

2. A critical commentary on the creative work submitted by the student for this module. This will give the student the opportunity to reflect on the choices made when writing their creative piece and help them to understand the process of writing. By writing the commentary the student will have a clearer idea of the extent to which they achieved what they set out to achieve and how they have been influenced by other practitioners. Advice about how to write a successful critical commentary will be offered during the course.

Assignment length: 1,500 words. Weighting: 20% of unit grade.

Please note that not every learning outcome will apply to both the creative assignment and the critical commentary.

Closing date for the submission of assignments:

Monday 15 November 2021 by 12.00 noon BST*
