

Undergraduate Certificate in Creative
Writing: Fiction and Writing for Performance –
Cohort 1

2021 – 2022

Course code: 2122CCR100

COURSE GUIDE

Welcome to the Undergraduate Certificate in Creative Writing: Fiction and Writing for Performance, a University of Cambridge award offered by the Institute of Continuing Education (ICE). The Certificate is taught and awarded at FHEQ level 4 (i.e. first-year undergraduate level) and attracts 60 credits. The award is completed in one academic year. For further information about academic credit please see our website: <http://www.ice.cam.ac.uk/studying-with-us/information-for-students/qualifications-that-we-offer>.

The course offers three termly units and a syllabus and reading and resource list for each of these units are included in this course specification.

The programme aims to:

1. introduce students to a wide range of different literary genres and styles in order to stimulate and develop their own creative writing skills;
2. provide opportunities for students to experiment with their own writing;
3. introduce students to the possibilities of transferring techniques between different genres;
4. build students' confidence by demystifying the art of writing and encouraging students to establish their own working routine;
5. encourage students to contextualise their writing within a variety of traditions and genres.

Transferable skills for further study and employability

- The capacity for independent thought and judgement
- The development of independent learning, study and time management skills
- The deployment of skills in critical reasoning
- The development of competence in using IT to support one's work
- The ability to work with others, productively and equitably
- The qualities necessary for employment requiring the exercise of some personal responsibility and the demonstration of high levels of motivation and personal commitment through part-time study

Study hours

The award of academic credit is a means of quantifying and recognising learning and within the UK, one credit notionally represents 10 hours of learning¹. Each of the units in this course attracts 20 credits so students should expect to need to study for approximately 200 hours in total to complete each unit successfully. However, it is recognised that students study at different paces and use a variety of approaches, so this is a recommendation, rather than a hard-and-fast calculation.

Course Director

Elizabeth Speller has a Cambridge MA and MPhil. Her work includes The Return of Captain John Emmett (Virago, 2011, Orange Book of the Month) and At Break of Day (Virago, 2014, CNY State One Read 2015). Her non-fiction includes Following Hadrian (Hodder/OUP, 2003) and a memoir, The Sunlight on the Garden (Granta, 2007). She was short-listed for the Forward Prize for Poetry in 2009 and provided the libretto for Michael Berkeley's work Farewell, written in memory of Sir Paul McCartney's wife Linda.

Journalism includes The Independent, the Financial Times, the TLS, and Vogue. She has taught at Cambridge, Bristol and Birmingham Universities and the U3A and her local poetry and novel workshops draw participants from diverse backgrounds and a range of experience. She was Royal Literary Fund Fellow at the University of Warwick and is currently completing a further novel for Virago.

Tutors

The course will be taught by a team of experienced tutors with teaching and research interests in diverse areas of critical and creative work. The most up-to-date lecture list for each unit including any guest lecturers will be published in the course's Virtual Learning Environment.

Tutors on this course are likely to include:

Craig Baxter is a dramatist writing primarily for the stage but also for screen and radio. Most recently: "Dreamcatcher" (Zoom play for SEND children and families, winner One Off Special Award at the Offies 2021); "Seneca Annoyed" and "Darwin Vexed" (podcast dramas for "The Sound of Anger", winner of 2 Gold Great British Podcast awards 2020) "Trumpington Voices" (community verbatim play), "The Little Big Band" (musical book, Netherhall School), "Eight Days That Made Rome" (TV drama documentary, Channel 5), "Lady Anna: All at Sea" (Cambridge Arts Theatre, Bath Theatre Royal and Number One Tour), "Pictures of You" (Cambridge Science Festival), "Somniloquy" (Hotbed Festival, Soho Theatre), "Let Newton Be!" (Faraday Institute, Cambridge, El Paso), "Re:Design" (Darwin Correspondence Project, Madrid, Berlin, Istanbul), "Like Confessing a Murder" (BBC Radio 3), "Monogamy" (Riverside Studies, BBC Radio 4), "The Altruists", winner of the fourth international Stage Script Competition for Best New Play About Science or Technology.

Claire McGlasson is an author and journalist whose debut novel The Rapture (Faber and Faber), inspired by the true story of an Edwardian cult of women, was a Sunday Times Book of the Year. She reports for ITV News, appears on programmes such as BBC 4's Front Row, is a regular chair and guest at literary festivals and writes articles for publications including The Guardian and The Big Issue. She is currently writing her second novel for Faber.

Menna van Praag was born in Cambridge and studied Modern History at Balliol College, Oxford. She's the author of five magical realism novels: The House at the End of Hope Street (2013), The Dress Shop of Dreams (2015), The Witches of Cambridge (2016), The Lost Art of Letter Writing (2017), The Patron Saint of Lost Souls (2019) all set in Cambridge. Her first novella Men, Money & Chocolate was translated into 26 languages. The first instalment of her fantasy trilogy, The Sisters Grimm, was published in 2020. She's a Creative Writing tutor who teaches for institutions including ICE, Hay House Publishers and The Cambridge School of Drama & the Creative Arts. She's also worked as a script reader and editor for BBC Wales, BBC Films and Box TV and for The Wylie Literary Agency.

Emily Winslow is the author of a series of Cambridge-set crime novels: The Whole World (Allison & Busby, 2013), The Start of Everything (Allison & Busby, 2013), The Red House (Allison & Busby, 2015), and Look For Her (Allison & Busby, 2017). The Washington Post has written: "[Winslow is] brilliant at portraying the ragged fragments of these lives. What emerges isn't a single killer with motive and means, but a tangle of stories crossing and colliding, stray intersections of incidents and accidents, misunderstandings and misreadings, all thanks to the myopia of individual perspectives and the self-centeredness of individual desires." She is also the author of the memoir Jane Doe January (William Morrow, 2016), which has been called "powerfully redemptive" (Publishers Weekly) and "potently rendered"

(Kirkus). She's written personal essays for The Guardian and The New York Times, and for six years was a logic puzzle designer for Games magazine in the US."

Charlot King has worked in BBC Drama and is an experienced script editor in television and reader for the UK film industry, specialising in drama and comedy. She is a former TV producer in BBC national news, working for ten years in total for the BBC. She is author of the Cambridge Murder Mysteries series and has a fiction series called Animal Tales. Charlot used to lecture at Oxford University, and has a PhD from the University of Cambridge. She is a Darwin College alumna. Before this, Charlot worked for several charities in public affairs. A less known fact about Charlot is that she used to drive a boat for Greenpeace.

Syllabus for first unit
Michaelmas term 2021

Introduction to creative writing

Start date	12 October 2021	End date	7 December 2021
Day	Tuesdays and Saturdays	Time	Tuesdays 7.15 – 9.15pm
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutors	Elizabeth Speller and Claire McGlasson	No. of meetings	9 evening classes plus 2 Saturday day-schools (30 October and 20 November 2021). Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2 pm)

Aims

- To introduce students to the contrasting yet complementary disciplines of short and long form fiction.
- To foster an understanding of the literary tools available to the fiction writer with particular reference to short form fiction
- To help students to apply, and experiment with, these strategies in their own writing.

Content

This unit will begin by asking what may seem obvious questions, such as: what is the purpose of fiction? Why has it endured as such a popular medium? What is the relationship between plot and character? What makes a story compelling? What do readers look for when they open the pages of a novel or short story? What is the nature of the hunger that we, as writers, seek to satisfy? What makes an idea ripe for expression as prose fiction, rather than the subject of a play or a poem or a song? Where do we draw the line (if we draw a line at all) between prose and poetry, prose and drama? If a picture is worth a thousand words, why do we need fiction at all?

We will then turn to the main focus for this term: short fiction and will consider what, apart from length, are the defining characteristics of the short story. Areas covered will include: theme, plot, narrative voice, characterisation, determining and evoking a sense of time and place, tension/drama, dialogue, arresting openings and releasing endings, editing. A consideration of all these aspects, as well as informing our understanding of how short stories work, provide an introduction to writing longer fiction. Building students' confidence as writers will be a key consideration in this, the first unit of the Certificate.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to fiction. Each class is designed to expose you to new ideas or techniques and to encourage you to experiment in a relaxed, supportive and friendly atmosphere. There will also be the chance to share work on the class's password-protected Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

All teaching will be carried out remotely. We will “meet” via live video conferencing and our guest speakers will also join us by video. There may be additional, pre-recorded presentations for you to watch between classes. All our tutors have experience of teaching remotely.

Approaches to long fiction

Start date	4 January 2022	End date	1 March 2022
Day	Tuesdays and Saturdays	Time	Tuesdays 7.15 – 9.15pm
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutors	Emily Winslow and Menna van Praag	No. of meetings	9 evening classes plus 2 Saturday day-schools (29 January and 12 February 2022) Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2pm)

Aims

- To introduce students to the techniques of writing longer fiction and to enable them to use these skills in furthering their own writing;
- To explore variety within the novel form, and to consider different kinds of innovation and experimentation;
- To examine the potential for fiction to explore social, political, and psychological issues.

Content

The aim of this unit is to introduce students to the challenges of writing longer fiction. The novel will be the main focus of this, although the novella and long short story will also be considered. Students will be invited to explore a range of works that reflect different aspects of these forms. The course will introduce techniques which could apply equally to both the 'literary' novel and the more 'popular' variety. These will include: researching and structuring a story; determining time and place; inventing convincing characters; conveying point of view; using dialogue effectively; describing different geographical and historical settings; sustaining suspense and creating drama; writing arresting openings, and providing satisfying conclusions. There will be an emphasis overall on ways of using language effectively, and on developing an individual writing style.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to long fiction. Each class is designed to expose you to new ideas or techniques and to encourage you to experiment in a relaxed, supportive and friendly atmosphere. There will also be the chance to share work on the class's password-protected Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

All teaching will be carried out remotely. We will "meet" via live video conferencing and guest speakers will also join us by video. There may be additional, pre-recorded presentations for you to watch between classes. All our tutors have experience of teaching remotely.

Lecture 8	22 February 2022	Structuring your plot: creating drama and maintaining suspense
Lecture 9	1 March 2022	Editing and revising: the importance of the 'blue pencil' in long form

Learning Outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- (i) identify key techniques in writing fiction;
- (ii) demonstrate the ability to employ these techniques effectively in their own writing;
- (iii) apply the strategies they have observed in action to their own fiction writing.

Student assessment

Students will be expected to contribute to discussion in class, participate in class exercises, prepare original work to share on the VLE, and comment on other students' contributions.

In addition, students will be expected to submit a 3,000 – 4,000 word first chapter of a novel, relating to a genre of their choice. Students must discuss and agree the title with the tutor in advance to ensure it meets the learning outcomes of the unit.

Syllabus for third unit Easter term 2022

Writing for Performance

Start date	22 March 2022	End date	17 May 2022
Day	Tuesdays and Saturdays	Time	Tuesdays 7.15 – 9.15pm
Venue	Remote delivery
Tutors	Craig Baxter Charlot King	No. of meetings	8 evening classes plus 2 Saturday day-schools (9 April and 2 May 2022) Saturdays 11am – 4pm (with break 1-2pm)

Aims

- To introduce students to the techniques of writing for performance;
- To foster an understanding of the dramatic tools available to the writer, with particular reference to writing for the screen;
- To enable students to apply, and to experiment with these techniques and dramatic tools to further their own writing.

Content

The aim of this unit is introduce students to the “nuts and bolts” of writing for performance. Writing for the screen will be the main focus, although developing work for stage and radio will also be considered. Students will be exposed to a range of texts that explore and reflect different aspects of the writing process across the different platforms. The course will introduce techniques that can be applied to the development of a short performance piece regardless of form, genre or platform. These will include: researching and generating ideas; developing stories through character; identifying and developing universal and specific themes; writing character-centred dialogue; evoking a sense of time and place; creating audience engagement; creating and sustaining tension and conflict. A consideration and exploration of these and other aspects of the writing process will serve as an introduction to writing for performance.

Presentation of the unit

This unit will be taught through a series of informal seminars. You will use close reading, discussion and practical writing exercises to explore different approaches to writing for performance. Each class is designed to expose you to new ideas or techniques and to encourage you to experiment in a relaxed, supportive and friendly atmosphere. There will also be the chance to share work on the class’s password-protected Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

All teaching will be carried out remotely. We will “meet” via live video conferencing and guest speakers will also join us by video. There may be additional, pre-recorded presentations for you to watch between classes. All our tutors have experience of teaching remotely.

Learning Outcomes

As a result of the unit, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to show they can:

- (i) identify key elements / techniques in writing for performance (screen, stage, or radio);
- (ii) (demonstrate the ability to employ these elements / techniques effectively in their own writing;
- (iii) analyse the effectiveness of these elements / techniques in their own writing and the writing of others.

Student assessment

Students will be expected to read and view the specified texts, contribute to class discussion, participate in class exercises and prepare original work in advance of the seminar / workshop.

In addition, students will be expected to submit a short screenplay OR stage play OR radio play in a genre of their choice. The word length should be 3,000-4,000 words or equivalent, appropriate to the form. This must be the student's own original work and the subject, genre and platform. must be agreed in advance with the tutor to ensure it meets the learning outcomes of the unit.
