Tutor biography

Christine graduated from the University of Reading where she undertook research into imagery in Virgil's Aeneid. Her doctoral thesis with the Open University examined Late Antique and Mediaeval illuminated manuscripts of the Aeneid. She is an experienced teacher of both secondary school students and adults.

Christine seeks to inspire her students with a similar enthusiasm for the Classical world as she holds herself, not least by encouraging her students to look at artefacts in museums and by organising visits to the Classical world. When reading texts, she encourages a co-operative spirit in her students to investigate style and sound, in addition to moulding a good translation.

Course syllabus

Aims:

The course will introduce you to:

- 1) appreciate and enjoy the reading of texts in Latin.
- 2) extend knowledge of Latin grammar, syntax and vocabulary.
- 3) develop the ability to translate orally from Latin into English.
- 4) develop an appreciation of literary style.
- 5) appreciate the context in which the texts were written

Content:

We shall concentrate on reading Virgil's Aeneid Book 2, where we follow the unfolding disaster of Troy through the eyes of Aeneas. Together we shall listen to Virgil's verse, work on producing a group translation, with a little help from published translations, and explore the style of the poetry.

We shall precede our study of Aeneid Book 2 by reading Livy's version of the story of Aeneas, and also refresh our knowledge of the structure of the Aeneid.

By reading some parts of Aeneid 2 in translation, we shall have time to meet Aeneas in Horace's Carmen Saeculare, thus linking the Trojan refugee with his descendant, Augustus.

The Saturday evening lecture will consider how Aeneas' flight from Troy has been illustrated.

You must provide your own copy of the text (any edition). NB All texts may be downloaded freely at: thelatinlibrary.com

Presentation of the course:

The class will read the texts and create an agreed translation through contributions from participants. There will be a full discussion of the author's style and, where appropriate, an analysis of the language used. Some parts of the texts will be read in translation to expedite reading of a complete book of the Aeneid. There will be an opportunity to hear the sound of Virgilian verse and a chance to read aloud. The session on Saturday evening will comprise a lecture from the tutor.

As a result of the course, within the constraints of the time available, students should be able to:

- 1) demonstrate an increased appreciation and enjoyment of the reading of texts in Latin.
- 2) show an improved knowledge of Latin grammar, syntax and vocabulary.
- 3) translate orally from Latin into English more effectively.
- 4) demonstrate an enhanced appreciation of literary style.
- 5) show a greater understanding of the context within which the texts were written.
